| Subject | Council Amalgamation |
| Your letter | As a Ratepayer of the George Town Council and a Business operator for the last 35 years in the Tamar Valley region I feel the need for change in our councils of Tasmania . I think we should create a North east corner division of Tasmania and call it Bass or flinders Shire of Tasmania .This would lessen the inexperienced councilors on the board of all councils, wasting money on trying to build infrastructure and buying machinery that sits in some council yards across the north of the state. You can get sub contractors in to do these jobs much cheaper. In my opinion there should only be two or three divisions across the state, the same as Tas Water have done. There are too many chiefs who don't do enough to earn their salary. More projects [like roads] would get done with the input of one jurisdiction talking to State Growth instead of twenty nine Councils. My | thinking is for one division to cover from George Town northern coastline using Tamar River as the border to Conara, across to the East Coast town of Falmouth
